Corick House Spa Wins Prestigious Professional Beauty Award

Corick House Hotel & Spa wins another award, this time for Residential Spa of the Year: 10 Rooms or Fewer at the Professional Beauty Awards in London.

Hotelier Avril Robson, who along with her brothers Andrew Beacom and Haldane McCleary own and run the country House Hotel, a hidden gem nestled in the countryside of the Clogher Valley. Having realised their mother's vision of creating the first 4*Hotel in Tyrone the family went on to complete an expansion which increased their bedrooms to 43 and delivered the impressive spa facility in the area fast becoming renowned for the ultimate in spa experience.

"We are delighted that we have received such a prestigious award I would like to take the opportunity to thank our staff especially in our spa for their continued hard work and determination to deliver the customer journey that makes Corick House Hotel & Spa so special. We will continually strive for the highest level of customer service and treatments and would like to thank all our customers for the continued support." - Avril

The Professional Beauty Awards are the longest running and best-attended awards for the beauty, nails, spa and aesthetic medicine industries, recognising outstanding customer service, treatment delivery and innovation.

More than 500 leading beauty industry figures gathered in London to celebrate the finalists and winners. The awards were judged by independent industry experts and every shortlisted salon, spa and clinic was visited and interviewed by a member of the judging team then separately mystery shopped to test the true guest experience.

Eve Oxberry, editor of Professional Beauty magazine, commented:

"The Professional Beauty Awards are judged by the industry and for the industry and there were a record number of entries this year across all categories, so the winners can be confident they really are the best businesses and individuals operating in the UK."
